Speculation vs. the Condition of General Trade.

DULL WEEK.

Review of the Various Markets.

STOCKS, BONDS. GOLD,

WALL STREET, SUNDAY, NOV. 1, 1874.} Wall street for the moment may indicate a re-newal of confidence and inspire hopefulness; but even this great force, when it runs counter to natural facts and figures and to a situation which not all the elasticity of the country has been capable of resisting—even Wall street must wait antil outside growth re-establishes saith and capi-tal finds a basis on which it can earn legitimate profit. The country is we are passing through a period in which the people are undergoing a change in the habits engendered by war. Extravagance is giving way to economy. Prices are declining because we demand less than before, and there is an excess of supply. But practically we are growing ticher, for while the volume of currency is unchanged we are leaving behind the artificial and coming down to real values. When, therefore, the capital now idle once more finds use it will be upon a basis

ADDITIONAL VALUE TO EVARY DOLLAR. When necessity brings home to all kinds of producers, by whatever name known, the fact that they must, in spite of the experience of the last ten or tweive years, adapt themselves to a new order of things not under the control of men, but ander the irresistible influence of natural causes, we shall have a condition that will change all present commercial calculations and bring about a revision of the plans and purposes on which busi-ness has heretofore been conducted. THE STOCK MARKET was not without its usual fluctuations, but the general condition was one of dulness. The decline ranged from 1/2 to 21/2 per cent. Toward the close there was more or less of recovery and "bulls" were strongly encouraged by the advance, which they ascribe to the favorable reports of railroad sarnings, there being only two roads which show s talling off. The investment demand in these classes of securities continues unabated and prices steady. Of the former bankers state that they find it difficult to secure large lots, except by picking up a few thousand here and there. Railroad bonds, espestally of the older issues, still have attraction for conservative investors, and a good deal of money has evidently found a place among them. fne range of prices in governments since January 1 is

Wool was in better request, and the market for both foreign and native ruled firmer, though prices were much the same. Cotton was sluggish for the most part, with the chief interest centred in speculative contracts. The movement in breadstuffs was more active, superinduced, in the main, by the extremely low prices ruling. The decline was checked by the active export movement, but shippers would not pay any advance, even though treights and grain both had fallen very materially. Flour ruled extremely low and was in mod-erate demand at that. Wheat declined almost every day until there was a decided break in ocean freights, when shippers were enabled to take hold, and orders to a considerable extent were filled, all at low figures, an a considerable extent were filled, all at low figures, and at the close both spring and winter were quiet, with the market heavy down to Saturday. Toward the close of the week, however, an active demand spring up, and prices advanced materially, both for lots on the spot and for future arrival. Oats were firmer under a better demand, and the market was in favor nearly all the time. Provisions were

SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN.

Can Prussia and Denmark Settle the International Difficulty by Arbi-FRANKFORT, Oct. 8, 1874.

The Spener Zeitung contains an editorial on the North Schleswig question, attempting to prove that an international Court of Arbitration would be useless in settling the differences between Denmark and Prussia. For the solution of the question the Spener recommends Denmark herself to request Prussia to take up the negotiations again. and to look about her for a friendly State to undertake the mediatorship. The Frankfort Zeitung remarks to this that in Denmark having found two mediators—England and Russia—instead of one, the Spener will hardly find this method more satisfactory than the other. The Russian press judges the North Schieswig question in a manner not very flattering to Prussia. The St. Petersburg Gazette, which is by no means of a Chauvinistic judges the North Schieswig question in a manner not very flattering to Prussia. The St. Petersburg Gazette, which is by no means of a Chauvinistic tendency, says:—

PRESS OFINION.

The relations between Germany and Denmark have taken a direction which does not do any great honor to the nation which now dominates in the centre of Europe. On this microscopic point of the heavens collect microscopic black points, which the observer cannot yet, indeed, look upon as the foreboders of an inevitable storm which can pass over without hurting any one. * * North Schieswig offers nothing, neither in a political, strategical, maritime or commercial respect, which could awaken the envy and the desire of land acquisition of a land like Prussia. The undisputed possession of the denty and the desire of land acquisition of a land like Prussia. The undisputed possession of the denty and the desire of land acquisition of a land like Prussia. The undisputed possession of the desires of the German patriots. Besides this, a few thousand discontented and irritated subjects can in no way serve as a sunicient compensation for the detestation and enmity of a weak neighbor. Germany is less than any other land in a condition to neglect its alliances and to be careless about its international relations. The future of the German Empire, if not of the German people, is still very dark and undefined. Germany does not possess by any means the concealed inclination of the masses and the nearly open sympathy of the educated classes, as did France during the time of the Empire's greatest military fame. For this reason Germany needs to be more careful. True, in the present moment Germany has nothing to tear from a European coalition, in view of her alliances with Russia and Austria, the indifference of England. the peculiar political condition of laiy and the powerlessness of France. But Germany and the remarkacle men who guide her destiny should not forget that we live in an age of rapid changes. What appears impossible to-day is to-morrow an acc the recent ordinance to place the Landsturm under the same organization as the Landwehr. This will greatly increase her military strength, and place her better than ever to meet any emerTHE COURTS.

JEFFERSON MARKET POLICE COURT. A Batch of Pickpockets.

Before Judge Smith. While Henry Snyder, of No. 149 East Sixteenth street, was riding on a Third avenue car, Saturday night, near Fifth street, and when he was just about to get off he was jostled by two men, one of whom picked his pocket of $22, and the other attempted to steal his watch. Snyder made a desperate resistance, and succeeded in holding the man who stole his money until the arrival of an officer, who took him into custody. At the station house the thief gaye his name as James Barry, and upon search the money was found in his possession. He was held in $1,000 bail to answer.

Charles Clemens, of No. 12 Thompson street, fell in with Lizzie Stewart, who stole $17 from his yest pocket. He caused her arrest, and she was held in $1,000 bail to answer.

While John O'Shea, of No. 225 Madison street, was standing in a saloon in Bleecker street, near Wooster, yesterday morning, his pocket was picked of $5 by one John Juffy, the money being found in the possession of the thier. He was committed in default or $1,000 bail to answer.

Compubint Infelicity.

James Weish and his wife Cornella, living at No. 120 King street, have not always been on the most amicable terms. Indeed, their quarrels have been so frequent that they have been compelled to sleep so frequent that they have been compelled to sleep with a dagger between them for the purpose of preserving the peace, but the sequel shows that it did not serve its purpose. In the still hours between Saturian night and Sunday morning they had their last quarrel. Mrs. Welsh did not talk much, she seized the dagger, and but for the aguity of her husband would have terminated his earthly career. But half clad he rushed into the street and invoked the law in the form of a police man, who entered the house and took his "better half" int custody. Mr. Welsh then slept in peace for the remainder of the night, and yesterday joyfully saw his spouse committed, in default of $700 ball, to answer a charge of felonious assault.

Burglary on West Twenty-Sixth Street. William White, cailing nimself a plumber, broke into the house of Herman B. Rover, No. 117 West into the house of Herman B. Rover, No. 117 West Twenty-sixth street, on Saturday night, and proceeded to collect all articles of value that he could find. He had secured a watch, one pair of earning, two suits of clothes and one dress, in all valued at $50, when detected by Mrs. Rover, who, upon seeing him, commenced to scream. Her cries attracted her husband to the spot and he succeeded in arresting the purglar before he could leave the nouse. Justice Smith held him in $1,500 ball to answer.

The Italian's Weapon. An Italian named Bartolomeo Brizzolona, living at No. 240 Spring street, was arrested vesterday morning in Spring street by Officer O'Shea, of the Eight precinct, with a murderous looking dirk in his possession, which he was flourishing and with which he expressed a lively desire to do someoody bodily harm. He was neld in $1,000 ball to an-swer.

ESSEX MARKET POLICE COURT. A Bold Attempt.

Before Judge Kilbreth.

About two o'clock yesterday morning Officer Brookhaus, of the Seventeenth precinct, saw two men standing in front of the show window of Isidor Shaw's shoe store, No. 156 avenue A. The Isidor Shaw's shoe store, No. 156 avenue A. The officer also noticed a horse and wagon drive up and stand in front of the store. He crossed the street and saw the two men passing shoes and boois through the window, which was broken, and depositing them in the wagon. They were both captured and brought to the station house, where they gave their names as John Finan and Patrick Malone. Some $56 worth of shoes were found in the wagon. Judge Kilbreth yesterday committed Finan and Malone in $2,000 ball each to answer on a charge of burglary.
